

Faculty of Health and Behavioural Science

Research Mentorship

2023 Nomination Guidelines

Value: $3000

The Research Mentorship Award recognises the ability of a researcher from HaBS to serve as a role model, and create a research environment that is aspirational, generative of opportunities for students' and junior colleagues' future research career development and reflects and supports the values of UQ.

An individual may be nominated by one or more staff members or Higher Degree Research students (nominator/s) for a HaBS Research Mentorship Award. Self-nominations are not eligible.

Eligibility:

- Academic staff
- Holding at least a 0.5 FTE paid appointment within the Faculty of Health and Behavioural Sciences
- Please note: Emeritus and Honorary staff are eligible to be considered for the Research Mentorship Award.

Nominations should demonstrate:

- Outstanding commitment to a research career
- Creation of a research environment that is aspirational, generative of opportunities for students' and junior colleagues' future research career development and reflects and supports the values of UQ.

The Associate Dean Research will request a letter of endorsement directly from the head of school or the centre director of short-listed nominations.

A two-page CV must be attached to the application as a PDF.